SOUND DOCTRINE.

REV. CHAS. G. AMES ON WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Oakland Puts a Tax on Telephones That Have a Nickel in the Slot Attachment.

Rev. Chas. G. Ames on Suffrage.

At the woman suffrage hearing just held in Boston, Rev. Chas. G. Ames said:

I lately came upon an account of a hearing given before the Massachusetts Legislature in 1832. It was on the question of having a railroad between Boston and Salem. The project was received with great disfavor, and one member of the Legislature ridiculed the idea of "setting a tea-kettle on wheels," but the railroad from Boston to Salem is still running, and the locomotive has come to stay.

Every man wishes not only that men were better fitted to be the companions of women, but that women were better fitted to be the companions of men. In the interest of men alone, if that alone were to be considered, we ought to welcome everything that will make women more intelligent and broad-minded. Whatever cripples one wing cripples the bird, and society at present is flopping about with one wing tied. Let women keep house; it is just what they are made for; but municipal government is only housekeeping on a larger scale, and women are needed to help in it. If we indeed wish that God should save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, we must help him to save it.

We cannot remain in our present half-and-half attitude, having given women suffrage on some things and refusing it to them on others. We must either advance or retreat. If women are not patriotic, if they are not fit to vote, we should go backward and repeal school suffrage. We have given women the alphabet, and they are using it just now more diligently than men. If they are not to have suffrage, they ought never to have had the alphabet.

At the time of the Revolution, only 150,000 of the citizens of Great Britain had the right to vote. Has Great Britain lost or gained since then? Who doubts that its government is better now than it is more broadly based on the popular will?

I never feel irritated, but I do sometimes feel amused, by the objections brought forward on the other side. The experience of England, Colorado, Wyoming and Kansas has refuted all these objections over and over, and shown that the predicted disasters do not happen. The repetition of every such objection is like the reappearance of a cat that has been killed ten times.

Nothing has given suffragists more courage than what has been well called the sham referendum. Who supposes that ten years ago we could have got 109,000 votes for woman suffrage in Massachusetts? Some day it will be unanimous, and all who now oppose it will be ashamed.

Tax on Telephone Slot Boxes.

Nickel-in-the-slot telephones are to be taxed in Oakland. The burden to be put on them will be $3 per quarter. This decision was arrived at tonight at the meeting of the Council. Ordinance and Judiciary Committee. An ordinance was introduced placing such tax on slot machines generally, and Councilman Heitman moved to amend by inserting the slot telephone box, which is being numerously put in about Oakland. The ordinance was referred to the City Attorney to put in the Heitman amendment.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan will take in Washington on his way South for his summer vacation—and it is to be hoped, it is really to be hoped; that the lock on the treasury is a strong one. On consideration, perhaps it makes small difference. Mr. Morgan has the combination.

A Prolific Breeder.

Issac Braddo who lives on Addison street between Third and Fourth streets is the owner of a goat that gives quite an amount of good wholesome milk, but there is nothing to distinguish it from the ordinary goats that browse upon the empty cans, bill boards and clotheslines of West Berkeley except its latest freak, which has raised it very much in the estimation of its owner and his immediate neighbors.

The cause of this rise in the value of the goat is that a few days ago it gave birth to four healthy kids, all of them strong and well developed and just as frisky as young kittens.

Mr. Braddo could hardly believe his eyes when he saw the increase in his possessions but now he has become used to it and he never fails to speak of the good quality of his goat.

It is very seldom that a goat ever gives birth to more than two kids at one time and four are considered something extraordinary and entirely out of the usual run, consequently West Berkeley is now supposed to contain the prize goat of the State, not barring any of the Telegraph Hill or Bernal Heights tribe.

Speaks for Itself.

The following circular letter has been sent out to the Associate members of the Berkeley Orchestral Society:

To the Associate Members of the Berkeley Orchestral Society,

Friends: With a view of bringing our organization into closer touch with those who have so flatly encouraged our efforts, and having already been impurported by certain of our friends to repeat some of the selections which we have played during the past two years, I take this opportunity of asking you individually if you would like to suggest any of such selections which you think would bear repetition. Should a sufficient number of our Associate Members signify a desire for any particular piece, we will be more than pleased to respond to their suggestion, and I trust that our efforts in the past have so met with your kind appreciation, that we may feel that your regard our organization as a special ward, which is in every way worthy of your continued approbation and support. And which is exerting itself in every possible manner to fully merit and retain your encouraging patronage.

An early response will be greatly appreciated by the Orchestra. Very truly yours, C. S. MERRILL, President Berkeley Orchestral Society.

Charged With Forgery.

James Lull, a resident of Berkeley, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Gibson and Wren in San Francisco, on a warrant charging him with forgery. Lull comes of a wealthy family and is heir to a large estate, which is held in trust for him by S. B. Patterson. He is given a handsome monthly allowance, but his expensive manner of living, it is said, has caused him to contract many debts. He is now accused of uttering several checks to which he signed the name of S. B. Patterson. Lull admits his guilt, but says he needed the money, and as Patterson refused to sign checks he concluded to act for him. It is said he obtained several hundred dollars in this manner.

The next field day on the University grounds will take place on Saturday next.

ARE LAID TO REST.

SAD FUNERAL SERVICES OF THE BOOTH CHILDREN.

Captain Hughes of the Steamer Oakland Paralyzed Gaily Must Pay.

Funeral of the Booth Babies.

The remains of Katie Anna and Ida Emily Booth, the only children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Booth, were laid away yesterday afternoon at Cypress Lawn Cemetery, in San Francisco, after a simple but impressive funeral service at the Booth residence in Oakland. Two little white coffins lay side by side in the front parlor, and were nearly lost to sight under a pyramid of floral offerings which were bestowed by a host of sympathetic friends of the bereaved family.

Rev. F. J. Maynard of St. John's Episcopal Church conducted the ceremony. The pallbearers had been chosen from among Mr. Booth's most intimate business associates. Those who bore the casket of Ida Emily to the hearse were J. P. Heller, B. C. Hayes, H. Clark and Captain Matthews. Those who carried the casket of Katie Anna were Paul Dorey, Judah Neuman, Simon Matthews and Jay Dewing. The reception hall, stairway, porch and front steps were one mass of floral designs, such as pillows, anchors, crosses, crowns, baskets and bouquets, which had been crowded out of the parlor.

High above the other designs which surrounded and covered the coffins was a large piece representing the gates of heaven, presented by the young friends of the unfortunate children. The funeral cortege was very long, and numerous private conveyances, among them coupes and open carriages, fell in line and followed the two white hearses to the train. A large number of those who attended the service were women and children, and deep sorrow was manifested by all in attendance.

Rev. F. J. Maynard spoke of the sad termination of the two young lives and uttered words of tender consolation to the bereaved parents and friends of the deceased.

Capt. Hughes Is Very Ill.

Captain William Hughes, who for nearly two decades has been master of the ferry steamer Oakland, did not report for duty yesterday. When some of his friends went to his residence to ascertain the cause they were shocked to learn that the Captain had been stricken with paralysis. His entire left side is affected, and it is believed that he is in a serious condition. His physician says the patient's recovery depends entirely upon his constitution. His place on the Oakland is taken temporarily by Captain Clarendon of the Transit.

Gaily Must Pay.

Mrs. Gaily will probably be called upon to pay the fine of $25 imposed upon him by Police Judge Wood for contempt of court. The Gaily case hinged on a decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Ah Quay, a Chinese lottery dealer. The Supreme Court now holds that the position taken by the attorney for the Chinese was not good, and when the Gaily case is called he will have to pay up, unless the court reverses its ruling.

The pictures of the students in their various costumes, while at work on the University grounds, that are on exhibit in Hanger's book store on Center street, attract a great deal of attention from passers by.

She was feeling too despondent to write any letters, and wanted to be dead as soon as possible, so she at once swallowed a couple of ounces of cold poison, and folding her hands across her breast lay down and waited for the grim reaper.

Her groans were attracted the inmates of the house, and Dr. Henry was summoned. Upon his arrival he at once saw that the woman was suffering from a dose of poison, and he gave her an emetic to bring up the poison and then he tried to get her to take a glass of water.

She did not feel able to swallow, consequently her misery could not be relieved by the reporter. It is said, however, that she informed one of the members of the Clark family that she still wanted death because her love had been spurned, and that she would procure a revolver and become a corpse through its instrumentality. She thought that if she got a bullet through her heart no doctor can then put a stop to her journey to the other shore.

Joe Seger, the barber, denies she claims against her, and denies that he has ever encouraged the woman's love and states further that he did not want it. He does not like either the woman, that he has never loved her, and that his life has thrust upon him.

When the news of the affair reaches Oakland there is no doubt that what the colored social circle will be greatly shocked and vexed.

MR. HILL ON CUBA.

THE NEW YORK SENATOR THINKS THAT THE CUBAN RESOLUTIONS ARE A LITTLE TOO AMBIGUOUS AND WANTS TO AMEND.

Washington, March 12. After an hour consumed in clearing away routine matters, the Cuban resolutions were laid before the Senate, and Hill of New York was recognized. He pointed out that this being a conference report, the resolutions could not be amended. He would, therefore, vote against the report, in order that at a subsequent time amendments might be made. The Senator particularly objected to the third clause of the resolutions, stating that the United States had not intervened in struggles between any European governments and their colonies, but that owing to the proximity of Cuba, the United States should be prepared to intervene. This he declared was pigorous and unmeaning.

We had intervened and recognized countries which had been colonies of Spain. What the resolution sought to convey was a threat to intervene. To this extent the resolution was unnecessary. It was subject to doubtful construction, and a mischief-breeder, liable to compromise us. The phrase, "The United States should be prepared to protect the legitimate interests of our citizens by intervention," sounded like a threat, or it was humbug.

If this resolution means that we should increase our army, let us say so frankly and frame a bill for that purpose, said Hill. "If it means that we should increase our navy, let us state it frankly and fearlessly and frame a bill to that end. Let us not indulge in idle boasts and threats and bombastic phrases as to being 'prepared to protect any legitimate interests by intervention.'"

At 6 o'clock there was a contest for precedence between the Cuban resolutions and the Dupont election case, which was finally settled by laying aside the Dupont case, while Sherman addressed the Senate in support of the Cuban resolution.

A DUSKY ROMANCE.

MRS. LAURA FLOOD TRIES TO END HER LIFE.

Her Husband Is Suing Her for a Divorce, and Her Love Was Scorned by Another.

Attempted Suicide.

For many months past, a city of Oakland has been gloomy and troubled over a divorce case that was going on in that city.

It seems that a colored gentleman named Flood, who keeps a boatblack stand on Seventh street, where he has a large and lucrative trade in shipping the uppers of the clothes that frequent that portion of the city.

For a long time he was happy and contented, for he was making money and he thought that his wife was the most charming life partner in the world. Finally the wife, who although colored, has auburn hair, began to weary of her boatblack husband and long for the company of a gentleman, who would a razor upon the chin and cheeks of numerous citizens of West Berkeley.

This finally came to the ears of the husband, and he swore vengeance and at once stuffed a razor into his boot, and informed his friends that the first time he met the Berkeley barber there will be trouble honey.

This information was soon given to the Berkeley barber, and he determined not to be caught napping when next he went to Oakland to indulge in a high rolling game of craps, so he procured a revolver and put it in his inside pocket and went to Oakland. He and the boat black met and razors were flying in the air and Joe was trying his best to get his revolver into play but it would not work. A friendly barber chair that was between the two men saved their lives and they soon parted, one by the front and one by the rear door.

As the wife of his bosom still declared her love for Joe, the Berkeley barber, Mr. Flood sought the courts and prayed that they would sever the relations between him and his auburn haired wife Laura and the proceeding is now a matter of record, although the divorce has not yet been granted.

Since that time Mrs. Laura Flood has been a constant visitor to West Berkeley in order to be near Joe Seger, the barber to whom she had transferred her love. Joe is quite a ladies man and has several strings to his bow, and the fact of having Mrs. Flood so near him did not suit him and so he informed her, but she was persistent and kept after him until yesterday afternoon when seeing him with another, she made up her mind that it was a fact that Joe did not love her, and she determined to end her existence, so she repaired to the residence of Mrs. Clark on Fifth street and retired to a room to die.

She was feeling too despondent to write any letters, and wanted to be dead as soon as possible, so she at once swallowed a couple of ounces of cold poison, and folding her hands across her breast lay down and waited for the grim reaper.

Her groans were attracted the inmates of the house, and Dr. Henry was summoned. Upon his arrival he at once saw that the woman was suffering from a dose of poison, and he gave her an emetic to bring up the poison and then he tried to get her to take a glass of water.
